

Fiery Scribe Brings the Power of AI to Print Job Submission

Agentic AI solution automatically reads and uploads email job requests to deliver maximum efficiency

FREMONT, CA. March 2, 2026 – Fiery, LLC, the print industry’s leading innovator of digital front ends (DFEs) and workflow software, today announced the launch of Fiery Scribe, an agentic AI solution that automatically reads email job requests and converts them into ready-to-print jobs.

Email job intake is a tedious process that is often prone to human error, and many print service providers lacking a good web-to-print solution still rely on employees for the task. Fiery Scribe solves this problem by automatically analyzing email requests to determine the print specifications and uploading the jobs into Fiery Command WorkStation - avoiding human errors and allowing employees to focus on more profitable tasks.

Bringing the power of AI to job submissions

Fiery Scribe is an agentic AI system - acting independently to achieve its task without human intervention - that constantly monitors your email inbox for job requests. Once a job is detected, Fiery Scribe uses large language model (LLM) training to extract key details like quantity, media, and finishing. Fiery Scribe then applies the correct job properties and learns from past jobs to continually improve accuracy.

- AI-powered email interpretation - Understands incoming job requests in natural language.
- Automatic job intake - Transforms messages into structured print jobs and applies settings without manual entry.
- Direct PDF handoff - Sends the attached file straight to Fiery with job properties ready to go.
- Fiery workflow integration - Delivers jobs straight to Command WorkStation for a smooth workflow.

Free employees to focus on profit

Fiery Scribe takes the busywork out of job setup, handling more jobs with fewer mistakes and less manpower. Simple, focused, and easy to use, Fiery Scribe is the perfect entry point if you're looking to adapt AI into your workflows - delivering real ROI for print-for-pay and in-plant operations where email requests predominate, so you can enjoy fast benefits without complex AI knowledge.

"At Fiery, we're laser-focused on helping print providers solve the real-world problems they face every day. Print providers don't need more dashboards - they need work out the door faster. With Fiery Scribe's agentic AI capabilities, print providers can enjoy email job submissions automatically uploaded in Fiery Command WorkStation with files and job settings ready to go, so teams spend less time on manual, error-prone administration and more time on revenue-generating work. For print providers unsure of how to adopt AI into their operations, Fiery Scribe is the perfect place to start," said Toby Weiss, CEO, Fiery.

Fiery Scribe is currently available in English, with more languages to come in 2026, and is available for purchase at the Fiery Shop or through authorized Fiery dealers.

For as few as 20 email job requests in an average day, Fiery Scribe could save 10 hours per month in job setup. Try out Fiery Scribe's online ROI calculator to discover your potential savings in two simple questions!
